FEDERAL BUILDING PROJECTS CLAIM ATTENTION IN VALLEY

Monongahela Edifice Well Under Way—Inspector at Donora Today

MONESSEN IS AWAITING TURN

Site Already Owned by Government At Last Named Town—Contract May Be Let Shortly—Buildings Will Cost Practically the Same

Three Federal Building projects in the upper Monongahela valley are claiming attention of the Treasury Department now. They are those at Monongahela, Monessen and Donora. Monongahela's Federal building is now under roof and such progress is being made that it will probably be completed ready for occupancy by the first of the year. The estimated cost will be slightly less than $100,000.

At Donora a Treasury Department inspector is today looking over two possible sites, one at Fourth and McKean and another at Thompson and Seventh. A recommendation and the purchase is expected to follow. About $80,000 will be spent on the Donora building.

Monessen is waiting its turn. A building site at the corner of Seventh street and Donner avenue was recently acquired by the government and it is anticipated that the contract for erection of the new edifice will be awarded soon. The style of the building and the size will compare favorably with others in the cluster of towns here. The department has a standardized plan of construction now and is using it, saving money thereby.

HOME MISSION SOCIETY MEETS WITH MRS. FRYE

The Woman's Home Mission society of the Methodist Episcopal church met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John H. Frye on Fifth street, with Mrs. D. H. Glant as leader. The topic taken up was "The Year's Outlook." Mrs. Elgie Hazelbaker and Mrs. W. G. Mead had papers. Mrs. Frank Welch presented a report of the convention of the Pittsburgh conference societies held last June. A good turnout was present at the meeting. There was some discussion of pledges for the coming season but no action was taken.

JUDGE DISMISSES ASSYRIAN CASES

Monongahelians Not Held Guilty for Pandering and Seduction

MARRIAGE PROBLEM COMES UP

Judge J. A. McIlvaine quashed the indictment in this county Wednesday against Sylvan Joseph and Elias Syphan, the two Assyrians charged with pandering, seduction, etc., by Cree Mike, another Assyrian of Pittsburgh. Joseph lives in Monongahela and it was to that place that he took Mary Mike, daughter of the prosecutor, after their marriage at Akron, Ohio. Charges were made against the men in both Allegheny and Washington counties. The action of the local court throws the matter now entirely in Allegheny county. It is alleged that Syphan, who is a merchant on Wylie avenue, Pittsburgh, simply accompanied Joseph and Mary Mike to Ohio to get married.

Besides stating that the information in the cases are clearly defective, the court is of the opinion in the case of Joseph that if he, with the girl's consent, married her after having obtained a license in Ohio, and that he then lived with her as his wife, he is not guilty of pandering. It is stated that a girl can secure a marriage license in Ohio at the age of 18 without her parents' consent.

In speaking of the case against Syphan, who helped Joseph and Mary Mike, the court states it does not believe the law was intended to punish a person who aids another in obtaining the consent of a female to marriage against the wishes of her parents. The proceedings in both cases are so irregular that the court believes the law was intended to punish.

MEMBERS OF CHURCH

CHOIR HOLD CORN ROAST
Members of the Methodist Episcopal church choir and a number of friends enjoyed a corn roast at the Frye farm back of Charleroi Wednesday evening. In the party were about 20 who enjoyed the affair to the utmost.

A good old fashioned time at Pelzers, Calvary grove, Wednesday evening Sept 13 1916. Everybody welcome. Hosted by the Ladies of the L. C. B. A. 73-13

DOWN RIVER ROBBERY BEING INVESTIGATED

Farralla, Known as Race Horse Owner Waives Preliminary Hearing and Goes to Jail—State Police Now at Work

Though late developments have not been of an especially sensational nature in the investigation of the highway robbery of Tuesday at Monongahela, where John Farralla was held up and robbed after being advised to withdraw money from the bank, police anticipate the probe now being inserted will unearth news of a startling nature.

Louis Ferella, widely known as a race horse owner and driver and as one of the most prosperous Italians of Monongahela Wednesday night waived a hearing before Alderman Ellwood and this afternoon was taken to the Washington county jail to await action of the court as an accomplice in Farralla's robbery. His wife will be given a hearing tonight on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Ferella will fight the case against him. The state police are at work. Some believe the Black Hand is active and others suggest still further complications. Ferella owns the horse known as "Peanut" which has been winning pretty regularly of late.

FREE SPEECH CASE TO COME BEFORE COURT

Testimony to be Taken Next Wednesday Morning in Complaint of Edward Hayden, Socialist Orator, Against Donora Borough.

Next Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock has been set as a time for taking testimony in the case of the borough of Donora against Edward Hayden. Mr. Hayden has appealed from the judgment of the Donora authorities, before whom he paid a fine and costs for speaking on the streets of that borough. Mr. Hayden was arrested two or three times for speaking on the street, and the last time was sentenced to pay a fine and costs. This he paid under protest. He represents the Socialist party, and avers his constitutional right was violated in not being permitted to speak.

ington. A violin solo will be played by Miss Norma Bosson.

The second Sunday morning will be featured by a sermon by Rev. A. S. Hartman, D. D., associate secretary of Home Missions and Church Extension. In the evening Dr. Hartman will also preach.

Christ Lutheran church was organized September 22, 1901 by Rev. S. J. McDowell, missionary superintendent of the Pittsburgh Synod, with 31 charter members. October 27 Rev. H. M. Leach of Ohio was extended a call to become first pastor of the mission. He took up his work on December 8, of the same year. Rev. Chalmers E. Frantz succeeded Rev. Leach January 13, 1907. The corner stone of the new church was laid August 30, 1908 and the church dedication took place May 30, 1909. The present pastor, Rev. C. P. Bastian took up his work March 1, 1912.

The church now has a "property" worth $50,000, centrally located and durable. The debt upon the church was approximately $33,000, but by heroic endeavors more than one third of this has been paid during the last few years. The slogan for next week will be, "$1,500 as an offering for the 15th anniversary."

WOMAN TRIES TO LOCATE HUSBAND

Inquires at Pittsburgh Morgue Concerning Body Found on Railroad

ACCOMPANIED BY CHILDREN

Mrs. Edward Hughes of Burgettstown, Washington county, asked the Pittsburgh police and morgue authorities Wednesday afternoon to help her identify the body of a man found beside the Panhandle Railroad tracks at Fourth Avenue Station September 3. The face was crushed beyond recognition, but marks on the body tally with those of a description given by Mrs. Hughes of her husband.

With her son Edward, aged 12, the eldest of four children, Mrs. Hughes went to the detective headquarters, where she told that her husband, a structural ironworker, had left home for his work in Pittsburgh two weeks ago. She said he usually stayed away a week, returning home on Saturday.

Mrs. Hughes believed the body was that of her husband because of a broken knuckle on the left hand and certain scars on the body, but found she could not swear to the identification on account of the face being mutilated.

HARSH NAMES USED CLAIMS LOCAL MAN IN DAMAGE SUIT

Alleging that the defendant called him a "damn liar, a damn crook and the worst crook in the world," Samuel Friedman, of Charleroi, has filed a suit against Jacob Zeidman for $2,500 for the alleged defamation of character. It is averred the statement was made publicly and in a loud voice, so that friends and acquaintances of the plaintiff heard the statement. He avers the statements made were false and scandalous and that the defendant knew they were.

Crest Avenue Brick Laying Finished This Week and Sand is Spread

FIFTH STREET TAKES TIME

Construction of Retaining Wall Takes Much Time—Crushed Stone Laid—Considerable Distance Ready to Receive the Brick

Contractors are on the last leg of their paving work for the 1916 season in Charleroi borough. Fifth street remains to be completed and with this finished practically all if not all of the paving contemplated in the comprehensive improvement plan of the year will be concluded.

Crest avenue work is being closed up this week. Spreading of sand on bricks just laid was completed today. Now there is a neatly paved street from Second street to below Tenth. Fourth street was completed a few weeks ago and the down town alleys included in the summer contract were completed months ago.

What took time on Fifth street, which is the last of the Brooke and Cornish contract, was the erection of a high retaining wall on both sides. Brick laying is partly under way and the crushed stone foundation and sand is laid for a further distance. The Fifth street work probably will be completed within the next week or two.

He came the entire distance without adding a drop of water to that in the radiator and upon his return found plenty in the tank. He came by way of Chicago, Logansport, Indianapolis, Columbus and Zanesville. The car, the first 1917 Jeffrey received here was delivered to Miss Hester Jacobs.

Steamed Peach Roll.

Sift two cupsful of flour with one scant teaspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of baking powder, rub in one rounded tablespoonful of butter and moisten with enough milk to make a rather stiff dough. Place on a floured board, pat into rectangular shape, cover with sliced peaches, dust with flour and sugar, roll into a loose roll, pinch the edges together, wrap in a floured cloth and steam one hour. Serve with peach syrup, slightly thickened with arrowroot or cornstarch.

Darning Tip.

To make silk stockings wear longer than they were ever meant to do buy a small spool of mending floss just the same color and carefully darn the heels and toes both ways. This precautionary darning will not spoil the looks of the new hose and it considerably retards the time when they become threadbare.

THE NEW GIRL

By EARL SILVERS.

"Well, I'm off," Tom Darrow paused in the library to say goodbye to his mother and sister.

"How long will you be gone?"

About two days, I speak in Kingston tomorrow morning and maybe in Haverhill in the evening. I'm not sure about the latter date, though.

"Come home as soon as you can," his sister advised. "I hope that a few days will move the loose across the street."

Tom looked interested.

"Know anything about her?"

No, except that she comes from along the Hudson somewhere, and is said to be something of a wonder."

"Um!" Tom glanced at his watch.

Well, I must be going. Don't expect me home till you see me."

He spoke in Kingston the next morning, and finding that it was necessary to visit RIM CHI for an evening lecture, he decided to cross the river, which was frozen from shore to shore. But upon reaching the bank he met with difficulties.

"The ice is too soft for crossing," an old man, evidently a trackwalker, told him.

The old man was evidently sincere in his admonition, and Tom hesitated.

As he stood debating, a young girl with eyes the color of a clear October sky, appeared around a bend in the road. She carried a suitcase and seemed to be in a hurry. She addressed Tom directly.

"Are you going to cross the river?"

she asked in a voice which dripped softly.

Tom instantly decided that he was.

"Yes, are you?" he answered.

"I must get across in order to catch the 4 o'clock train for New York." Her eyes glanced over the ice inquiringly.

"So must I," Tom picked up his own grip. If you want to get over, I'll go ahead and you can follow. Then, if I fall in, you don't have to go any farther. You can beat it back to shore."

The girl's eyes sparkled.

"All right," she said. "Go ahead."

He stepped out upon the river, the girl following. Near the shore the ice was thick enough to hold them easily, so the leader of the expedition attempted conversation.

"This is lots of fun," he began hopefully. "Do you live around here?"

"No, not now. I've moved."

"Very far?"

"A hundred miles or so."

"Quite a distance. Doesn't happen to be near New York, does it?"

Yes, pretty near."

"Um!" There was a short silence.

"My name's Tom Darrow."

"It is?"

Tom looked around, but as far as he could see his companion was not making fun of him.

"Maybe we'll meet down there sometime," he suggested.

"Maybe we will."

Tom glanced around again; he didn't quite understand the girl following in his wake. Suddenly the ice gave way, and he only saved himself from a complete wetting by a remarkable contortion act.

"You'd better keep your eyes to the front," the unknown warned him. "You almost fell in then."

Advancing cautiously across the channel of the river they managed to reach the firm ice near the farther shore. From thence it was an easy matter to proceed to the bank.

"I'm very much obliged to you," the girl said. "I should have missed the train if it hadn't been for you."

"Oh, that's all right," Tom gazed for a long minute into the blue of her eyes. "Will you tell me your name?"

He pleaded.

"My name—," she paused for a moment, smiling—,"Doris Stanhope."

"And your address?"

"I don't think I'll tell you my address," she seemed to be only half in earnest, so Tom persisted.

"I live in Rahway, N. J.," he said. "Now tell me where you live."

The girl started, seemed about to say something, and then checked herself.

"No!" She shook her head decisively. "I'm not going to tell you. Good-bye."

"Please!" he urged.

"No! Maybe we'll meet some time. Good-bye!"

Before he could protest further, she was off, and had disappeared into the small station.

"She has the most wonderful eyes I've ever seen," he muttered. "And now, I'll probably never see her again."

He thought of her often during the night, and was still thinking of her when he reached home the next afternoon.

"You've come just in time," his sister informed him. "We're going to have a little party for the people across the street tonight."

"You are?" Tom showed little interest.

"Yes, I met the girl this morning, and she has the most wonderful blue eyes I've ever seen. You'll be crazy about her, Tom."

"What's her name?"

"Doris Stanhope."

"Well, I'll be—" Tom walked to the window and looked across the street.

"I think," he said slowly, "that I'll drop in and greet the newcomer this afternoon."
